

Somaliland Marathon

Terms and conditions of entry to the Event for Participants and Volunteers

IMPORTANT - These terms and conditions ("Conditions") govern Participants of and Volunteers to the Somaliland Marathon 2020. You should read them carefully prior to registering for the Event. You should only register and participate in the Event if you have read, understood and agreed with these Conditions. These Conditions represent a legally binding agreement between you and Somaliland Marathon ("SM"), a company currently being registered in the Self-Declared Republic of Somaliland. These Conditions shall become binding on you and us when we issue you with written confirmation that you have successfully registered for the Event, usually by email.

SM have written these Conditions in what is hoped you will find to be simple English. If there is any part of them that you do not understand you should contact us. The contact details are set out below. SM will answer any queries that you may have either about these Conditions or any other aspect of the Event.

1. Inherent risks of travelling to and running long distances in Somaliland

SM think it is essential to be open and transparent about the situation in Somaliland, the level of infrastructure and creature comforts that you can expect whilst in the country for the Event, and the risks inherent to competing in the Event. You should therefore read this section carefully to ensure that you enter the Event "with your eyes open". However, you should also carry out your own research on Somaliland to satisfy yourself that the Event is suitable for you and be aware of the advice of your own country about travel to Somaliland. By completing and signing a Registration Form for the Event, you certify that you have read, understood and agree to these Terms and Conditions.

Somaliland is on the coast of the Gulf of Aden. It declared independence after the overthrow of Somali military dictator, Siad Barre on the 18th May, 1991. The move followed a secessionist struggle during which Siad Barre's forces pursued rebel guerrillas in the territory. Tens of thousands of people were killed. Though not internationally recognised, Somaliland has a working political system, government institutions, a police force and its own currency. The former British protectorate has also escaped much of the chaos and violence that plague Somalia. Tourism infrastructure is steadily improving but, by Western standards, or even by the standards of those who have been on safari or beach holidays in East Africa, it is important to note that standards remain relatively modest.

Reconstruction continues, foreign investors are arriving and Somaliland is increasingly on the map as an adventure tourism destination. But until transport and 'getting around' become a little easier, visitors have the country pretty much to themselves.

In short, in the absence of extreme bad-luck or traveller stupidity, and despite the poor state of the transport network, the presence of various tropical diseases and a basic health-care infrastructure, the overwhelming majority of traveller visits who Somaliland are free of incident. Nevertheless, travellers should be vigilant, sensible and take the same precautions they would visiting any other foreign country.

About the Event

The Event consists of two races: a full marathon (42.2km) and a 10km run. The two races will be run in and around the capital city, Hargeisa.

Running in Somaliland in February will be challenging. It is possible that it will be a wet race. Hargeisa is located at 1,334 metres above sea-level and while this will not cause problems for most runners, this change in altitude may affect some. The roads are a mixed bag, although improvements are being made month-to-month. Currently the full marathon course is mostly on tar roads but it should be remembered that these roads are poorly maintained. Temperatures are likely to reach the mid to high twenty degrees Celsius by mid-morning on the day of the Event. Humidity may also increase the physical difficulty on the race, although this will obviously be reduced if it rains. You will need to be comfortable with the idea of running in hotter conditions than those with which you may be familiar.

SM will do our utmost to ensure runner safety, working with the local authorities to close the race routes to traffic or at least limit motorised vehicles' access to it. However, we cannot guarantee that runners will not encounter vehicles.

The Caveat

In short, SM can't promise that you'll be comfortable at all times during your time in Somaliland and, despite reasonable endeavours, it is likely that there will be times when you may be uncomfortable. But what we can tell you is that we will work as hard as possible to keep you safe. Nonetheless, you are ultimately responsible for the choices you make whilst in Somaliland, including whether or not to participate in the Event in the light of the weather conditions on the date.
